Coffin is truly unique

THE Queen's English oak coffin was made 30 years ago and is lined with lead.

Andrew Leverton of Leverton & Sons, the firm of undertakers which has worked with the royal family on the funeral arrangements, said: "It is made from English oak, which is very difficult to get hold of."

"Oak coffins are now made from US oak. I don't think we could use English oak for a coffin now. It would be too expensive."

Mr Leverton added that the coffin took a long time to make due to "fitments on the coffin lid" for royal fixtures to be added.

Minute silence tribute

THE nation will hold a minute's silence at 8pm on Sunday to mourn the Queen's death.

Downing Street said it will be a "shared national moment of reflection" at home, vigils, community events or even abroad.

The Prime Minister's official spokesman said: "At 8pm on Sunday, September 18, the night before the state funeral, there will be a one-minute silence where the public are invited to come together and observe a national moment of reflection to mourn and reflect on the life and legacy of Queen Elizabeth II."

Jedward blasted over jibe

JEDWARD have been slammed after calling for the monarchy to be "abolished"

The Irish pop twins, real names John and Edward Grimes, 30, were hit with a bitter backlash for their rant in the wake of the Queen's death.

They tweeted: "Abolish the monarchy and give the people real democracy!"

Outraged fans blasted the pair, who rose to fame on The X Factor in 2009.

One penned: "Could you two just be quiet?"

Another wrote: "Abolish Jedward."

'30-HOUR' QUEUE FOR FAREWELL

■ by WILL STONE
MOURNERS may have to queue for 30 hours to see the Queen's coffin.

A million members of the public are expected to travel to London to pay their final respects to Her Majesty.

Her body will lie in state at the Palace of Westminster from tomorrow afternoon.

But people are being warned they may have to wait for hours – possibly overnight.

And there will be little chance to rest, as the queue will be continuously moving.

Culture Secretary Michelle Donelan said: "Queues could be up to 30 hours as we are obviously expecting and planning for unprecedented demand."

Everyone attending will have to go through airport-style security. They will only be allowed to bring one small bag and will have to switch off their phone.

They will also have to be silent inside the palace and wear respectful clothes.

Transport chiefs fear London could be swamped with people travelling to pay their final respects. Network Rail has warned of "unprecedented demand", and hotels have reported a surge in bookings.

Royal fan Vanessa Nanthakumaran, from Harrow, was among the first people to line up to pay their respects – 48 hours before the queue opens at 5pm tomorrow.

The 56-year-old said: "I really, really want to be part of it." New Met police boss Sir Mark Rowley said the force was ready for the event after "preparing for many, many years".

Troops' sombre march

■ SOLDIERS in the Life Guards practise for the funeral procession with a coffin laid on a horse-drawn carriage at Wellington Barracks. Meanwhile more guards, right, are put through their paces there.

■ Public loos are in place at Westminster, left, while Vanessa Nanthakumaran and pal Anne, from Cardiff, head the queue at Lambeth Bridge to see the coffin.

POLICE RING OF STEEL

THE Queen's funeral is set to be Britain's "biggest ever security operation".

More than 10,000 police officers are understood to be involved as Her Majesty's coffin makes its way from Scotland to London.

Nick Aldworth, former Counter Terrorism Policing National Coordinator, added: "This will be probably the biggest policing and

■ by LEIGH McMANUS
protective operation the UK has ever mounted."

Hundreds of police and intelligence staff have had their leave cancelled.

Officers armed with sniper rifles were spotted on the roof of St Giles' Cathedral as the Queen's coffin arrived in Edinburgh yesterday.

Police have also been granted a no-fly zone order over London as her coffin is scheduled to arrive in the capital later today.

Protection will be further ramped up for foreign dignitaries set to fly in from all over the world for Her Majesty's funeral on Monday.

Meanwhile, a protestor was tackled to the ground by members of the public after he heckled Andy Windsor during the Queen's coffin procession in Edinburgh. A 22-year old man was later arrested over a breach of the peace.

NATION MOURNS: CROWDS

Cuts to crown

KING Charles is set to be crowned in a "cost-of-living coronation".

The King is said to want his ceremony next year to be seen as "good value", reflecting his desire for a slimmed-down monarchy.

The Queen's lavish coronation cost the equivalent of £46million today.

A royal source said of Charles: "It will be shorter, smaller, less expensive and more representative of different faiths."

Crying shame

A TOWN crier left passers-by in hysterics after he accidentally proclaimed the monarch as King George instead of Charles III.

He was seen in traditional dress hailing the new King on the high street in Bromsgrove, Worcs.

He said: "...shall be the formal proclamation of the declaration of the ascension of King George..."

The red-faced chap then corrected himself, yelling: "George? CHARLES."

Dodgy digits

THE Queen once said Charles had "interesting" hands as a baby.

In a letter to her former music teacher, she wrote: "The baby is very sweet... He has an interesting pair of hands for a baby."

"They are rather large, but with fine long fingers quite unlike mine and certainly unlike his father's."

As an adult, King Charles has often joked about his swollen "sausage fingers".

Hair to throne

ONE of King Charles' old schoolmates says that he has kept a lock of the royal's hair for over 50 years.

Richard Kumnick went to Geelong Grammar School in Australia when Charles was an exchange student there in 1966.

Richard pocketed the lock when they visited a barber at the same time.

He said: "I must say it's a different colour than the hair we see today."

MOVING TRIBUTE: Charles and coffin in cathedral

King & siblings unite for Scots' final farewell

ALL The Queen's children followed their "darling Mama" through the streets of Edinburgh yesterday as Scotland said a final farewell to Her Majesty.

King Charles III was joined by his siblings walking behind the hearse carrying their mother's coffin as it made its way along the Royal Mile.

It had come from the Palace of Holyroodhouse and headed to St Giles' Cathedral.

The hearse was flanked by the King's Bodyguard for Scotland, the Royal Company of Archers, with the King, Princess Anne, Andy Windsor and Prince Edward following behind.

Alongside them was Princess Anne's husband, Vice Admiral Sir Tim Laurence, while a car behind carried Camilla, the Queen Consort, and Sophie, the Countess of Wessex.

The solemn procession marked the next stage of Queen Elizabeth II's final journey as thousands of well-wishers lined the historic street, with crowds

10-deep in some places. It began after a 21-gun salute welcomed the King before he took part in the Ceremony of the Keys – an ancient custom where the monarch is given and then returns the keys of the city.

Inside St Giles' Cathedral the Crown of Scotland was placed on top of the casket by Alexander Douglas-Hamilton, the 16th Duke of Hamilton, and will remain there for 24 hours while thousands of Scots pay their last respects.

Rev Calum MacLeod told the congregation: "We gather to bid Scotland's farewell to our late monarch, whose life of service to the nation and the world we celebrate, and whose love for Scotland was legendary."

The thanksgiving service involved readings from First Minister Nicola Sturgeon, a Catholic archbishop and an Episcopal bishop. And a Commonwealth student from Nigeria read a prayer.

Among the guests were Prime Minister Liz Truss.

Mourners will continue to file past the coffin until 3pm today before the Queen, who died on Thursday, is flown to London by the RAF to lie in state.

Earlier yesterday, the King received an address in Parliament where he told MPs he could "feel the weight of history" on his shoulders.

Podcast paused by Meg

THE Duchess of Sussex has delayed the release of her next Spotify podcast after the death of the Queen.

Three full episodes of the Archetypes series have been released since its launch on August 23, featuring conversations with tennis ace Serena Williams, pop star Mariah Carey and actress Mindy Kaling.

A message on the podcast's Spotify page said: "New episodes of Archetypes will be paused during the official mourning period for Her Majesty."

Meghan and Harry signed a lucrative deal with the audio streaming giant, estimated to be worth £18million, in late 2020.

Her Maj was not amused

THE Queen "loathed" Boris Johnson after he gave her the nickname "Her Maj", it is claimed.

A Palace source reportedly said: "I think she loathed Boris. He went round referring to her as Her Maj and never gave her any useful advice."

The source claimed the ex-PM did not use his position to help the Queen over Andy Windsor's civil sex case scandal, in which he denied any wrongdoing.

They added: "You would have expected a prime minister to help sort out the mess. But Boris couldn't - he was mired in scandal of his own."

Granny, thank you for all your service, your advice & your infectious smile..

■ by WILL STONE

THE Duke of Sussex has published an emotional tribute to his "guiding compass" the Queen.

Prince Harry, who quit his life as a senior royal in 2020, thanked his late granny for her "sound advice" and "infectious smile".

In a statement released yesterday, he said: "She was globally admired and respected.

"Her unwavering grace and dignity remained true throughout her life and now her everlasting legacy."

He referred to words which the Queen spoke when her husband Prince Philip died last year, saying: "Life, of course, consists of final partings as well as first meetings."

Harry added: "Granny, while this final parting brings us great sadness, I am forever grateful for all of our first meetings - from my earliest childhood memories with you, to meeting you for the first time as my Commander-in-Chief, to the first moment you met my darling wife and hugged your beloved great-grandchildren."

He also paid tribute to his dad, saying: "We now honour my father in his new role as King Charles III."

The statement comes days after Harry and wife Meghan surprised onlookers by joining Prince William and Princess Kate to meet crowds at Windsor Castle on Saturday. The couple inspected flowers left by well-wishers (left), showing a united front.

The death of their grandmother appears to have seen the princes shelve their differences.

It is understood the new Prince of Wales invited his brother to join him and Kate, with a royal source saying William thought it was an "important show of unity".

The four were last seen together during the Commonwealth Day church service in 2020. Earlier that year, the Sussexes announced their decision to "step back" as senior royals.

The rift widened further after the pair's explosive interview with Oprah Winfrey.

Harry is due to release a "tell-all" book about his life later this year.

HARRY'S TRIBUTE

Statement from Prince Harry, The Duke of Sussex:

In celebrating the life of my grandmother, Her Majesty The Queen —and in mourning her loss—we are all reminded of the guiding compass she was to so many in her commitment to service and duty. She was globally admired and respected. Her unwavering grace and dignity remained true throughout her life and now her everlasting legacy. Let us echo the words she spoke after the passing of her husband, Prince Philip, words which can bring comfort to all of us now: “Life, of course, consists of final partings as well as first meetings.”

Granny, while this final parting brings us great sadness, I am forever grateful for all of our first meetings—from my earliest childhood memories with you, to meeting you for the first time as my Commander-in-Chief, to the first moment you met my darling wife and hugged your beloved great-grandchildren. I cherish these times shared with you, and the many other special moments in between. You are already sorely missed, not just by us, but by the world over. And as it comes to first meetings, we now honour my father in his new role as King Charles III.

Thank you for your commitment to service.

Thank you for your sound advice.

Thank you for your infectious smile.

We, too, smile knowing that you and grandpa are reunited now, and both together in peace.

Day off ‘to cost billions’

THE Queen’s funeral bank holiday could plunge the battered economy into recession even sooner.

Mass closures of businesses and public services on Monday could cost billions, experts warn. And 10 days of mourning will add to the slowdown.

Philip Shaw, of Investec, said: “If you have an extra bank holiday that tends to reduce GDP as you’ve got fewer people at work.

“It is quite possible that you get a contraction over the month as a whole, which results in the economy getting smaller over the quarter.”

Trouble brewing on eBay

A TEA bag said to have been smuggled out of Windsor Castle after being used by the late Queen has been removed from eBay.

It had a hammer price of more than £10,000 and boasted: “Own a piece of History! Priceless!”

But would-be buyers became suspicious of the listing by a user in Decatur, in the US state of Georgia – because the tea bag’s label reads “Lipton America’s Favorite Tea”.

One former palace aide said: “Her Majesty drank Earl Grey and sometimes Darjeeling. She didn’t dunk tea bags.”

Uri ‘I’ve altered destiny’

URI Geller says he persuaded officials to take the mystical Stone of Destiny to King Charles’ coronation next year.

The psychic said he had heard the stone – used for new Scots kings since 1296 and Brit monarchs for centuries – would not be moved from Edinburgh.

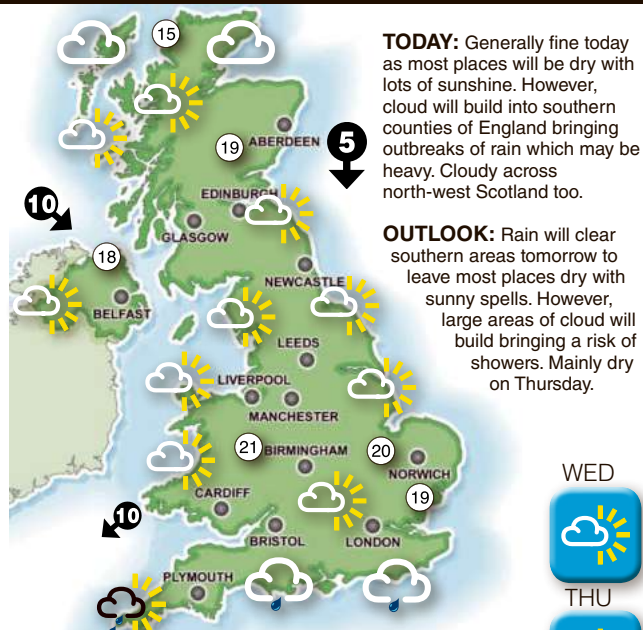

Uri, 75, said: “Spiritually and power-wise it has to go back so King Charles will have a good reign.”

He claims he “bombarded officials telepathically”.

It will go to Westminster, Historic Environment Scotland confirmed.

Patients driven to paid care

LONG NHS waiting lists are forcing desperate patients to go private.

They are cutting spending, using savings and going into debt to afford care, a study shows.

One in 10 adults has turned to the private sector or independent healthcare in the past 12 months, the study commissioned by Engage Britain found.

The charity's Miriam Levin said: "As people suffer months of pain after postponed appointments, or waste time and energy chasing up referrals, millions are feeling desperate enough to use savings or get into debt to help get well again."

Covid-19 cases at new low

COVID infection has dropped to its lowest level in 11 months.

A total of 944,700 people are estimated to have had coronavirus in the week to August 28, according to the Office for National Statistics.

This is the first time the figure has fallen below one million since the beginning of June.

And it is also the lowest UK-wide total since the week to October 2, 2021, when the number stood at 942,600.

Infections hit 3.8million in early July this year during the spread of the Omicron BA.4 and BA.5 subvariants of the virus, but are on a downward trend.

EU deal hope on NI trade

Maros Sefcovic said the EU was ready to work in an "open and constructive" way to find a negotiated settlement on the Northern Ireland Protocol.

Britain has threatened to override parts of the post-Brexit treaty to cut trade barriers with the region.

But Mr Sefcovic said goods could be processed "remotely" on their way to Northern Ireland, as long as the UK provided real-time data on them.

He said: "Not so long ago, authors were churning out books on how the 'rise of the robots' would lead to 'the jobless future'."

"Recent job reports, however, raise a different threat - not whether robots will replace human labour but whether they will save the world economy." Worldwide unemployment is at 4.5% - the lowest since records began in 1980. And labour shortfalls are at historic highs in advanced countries, including the UK.

In the US there are 11.2million vacancies but just 5.6m job hunters - the widest gap since the 1950s. It has increased due to millions who quit jobs during the pandemic failing to return.

Mr Sharma added: "Forecasters have been predicting since the 1950s that full-blown AI would arrive in 20 years, but it is not here yet. They can't arrive too soon."

HOW TO GET RID OF THE PESKY UNDEAD...

AN antique vampire killing kit, left, complete with crucifixes, daggers and a pistol with silver bullets is tipped to sell for £1,000 at auction, as we revealed yesterday. But how do you destroy the creepy creatures? Loads of different methods have been used to combat them down the centuries – both in fiction and real life. Here JAMES MOORE reveals the ultimate bloodsucker-busting guide...

GRIM: Vlad and his impalings. Below, sun destroys Nosferatu

ANTI-VAMP SOLUTIONS

STAKES: The idea that you can drive a stake through a vampire to kill it, may have originated with 15th-century Transylvanian ruler Vlad the Impaler, who skewered his victims on spikes. Driving a wooden stake through the heart of a corpse was certainly a method used in Eastern Europe to stop the dead rising, such as Serbian Arnold Paole after the vampire suspect's body was dug up in 1727. It's claimed that 1970s hunters saw off London's Highgate Vampire the same way.

DECAPITATION: In Bram Stoker's 1897 novel Dracula, the villain is killed with a knife to the throat and heart, while a female vampire is also beheaded. Cutting off a corpse's head was a real-life method of warding them off too. In 2013, archaeologists in Poland found old graves of decapitated skeletons with their heads placed between their legs.

SILVER BULLETS: In the book Dracula, it is revealed that shooting a sacred bullet into a vampire could destroy one. It was said to have once been a real, preferred method in the Balkans. In European folklore, silver was more associated with killing werewolves, with silver bullets only becoming popular vampire fighting tools in films.

GARLIC: Long before Stoker mentioned it in Dracula, garlic had been linked to warding off vampires and even stuffed into the mouths of the dead. Some historians have linked this belief to outbreaks of rabies which, as well as causing frothing at the mouth, causes hypersensitivity.

SUNLIGHT: Sunlight destroys a vampire by burning their skin. Experts think the link might have come from a misunderstanding of the condition porphyria, where light exposure leads to rashes. The idea vampires couldn't go out in daylight at all only became mainstream with the 1922 film Nosferatu.

BRICKS: A 1679 theologian said vampires may be stopped by putting a stone in a corpse's mouth. In 2006 archaeologists in Italy found a skeleton with a brick in its mouth.

POTIONS: After Mercy Brown, 19, from Rhode Island, US, died, more members of the family became ill. In 1892 her body was exhumed. It showed little decomposition and thinking vampirism was at work the family burned her heart and mixed the ashes into a potion to try and heal her sick brother. It didn't work – he died of tuberculosis.

HOLY STUFF: As vampires were said to be ungodly, early Christians thought items like a crucifix, left, and holy water could offer protection.

He also said posh stars like Damien Lewis, 51, and Benedict Cumberbatch, 46, taking over the acting world proved "feudalism" exists in the UK.

An offal time for sick Kon

KONNIE Huq says filming a travel show in China turned her vegetarian.

The ex-Blue Peter host, 47, was traumatised on her two-month visit by local meat and fish dishes.

She told podcast Spinning Plates: "I came back vegetarian. I was so thin."

"You could buy bags of chicken claws which they eat like crisps, and lots of places with tanks full of living sea creatures."

"I remember seeing menus where it's sort of like fried fallopian tube or oesophagus."

"And I would think, oesophagus of what?"

James swipes Biden's wipes!

WHAT A STEAL: Joe Biden and the White House HOST NICKS FROM PRESIDENT'S LOO

JAMES Corden stole packs of presidential napkins from the White House loo.

The presenter, 44, was filming for his US show at Joe Biden's residence when he spotted the plush hand napkins carrying the President of the United States (POTUS) stamp.

The Late Late Show star confessed his crime when he did a joke about Trump's legal battle with the FBI over theft allegations. He said: "This does make me feel less guilty for stealing all those napkins when I was at the White House. That is true."

His producer Rob Crabbe confirmed he got one as a gift from James, adding: "There are probably 40 napkins in each plastic thing, good, high-quality ones, with the president's seal on them."

DRAG ACT IS TOO SAVAGE

PAUL O'Grady could not do his Lily Savage act today as "everyone's so touchy".

He fears some of his alter-ego's gags would be too spicy for modern audiences – and admitted he'd also struggle to wear her racy outfits.

Paul said: "Comedy has changed so much. Some of it

The ex-Bake Off host, 54, had to clean and take bar work as she and Sue Perkins, 52, struggled on the comedy circuit in 1997.

Waste's the key

AN energy investor says Britain can save £100billion-worth of power if we just stop wasting energy.

Jonathan Maxwell, of Sustainable Development Capital, disagreed with plans to subsidise bills.

He blamed "public and commercial buildings, heavy industry and transport" rather than households for the waste.

Mr Maxwell recommended energy generation closer to buildings, such as rooftop solar, to cut waste.

PUBLIC TOILETS GO DOWN PAN

■ by IWAN STONE

FREE public loos could be axed with councils charging a quid to use them, an expert says.

The Government is not flush enough to give out any cash so local authorities are having to cut back.

And toilet tsar Raymond Martin claims charging desperate punters £1 to go for a wee could earn councils millions of pounds in extra revenue.

Mr Martin, MD of the British Toilet Association, said: "Money is just going to get tighter and tighter and the crisis is going to have a significant impact on toilets. I think the days of the free toilet are gone."

"If you pay £2.50 for a coffee, £1.50 for a croissant or £1.95 for a sausage roll, why not £1 to go to the toilet?"

There are also fears if councils cannot afford to clean them properly our bogs could be a breeding ground for killer viruses.

Mr Martin added: "If you let toilets get dirty there is a danger behind it - costs are going to rise but if we don't clean them we are actually putting lives at risk."

"Toilets are essential. We don't need people defecating in the street."

Councils are not legally obliged to provide loos.

WOKE FEAR: Henry

Lenny: Let me be bad

SIR Lenny Henry says woke telly execs are too nervous to cast black actors in negative roles.

The comic and actor reckons things have changed too far since he broke through on TV in the 80s.

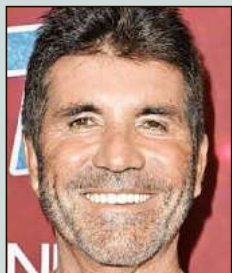

Sir Lenny, 64, said: "There is this idea that black folk on TV have a responsibility to represent their people in a political, positive and creative way, without showing any of the faults or failures of that particular community.

"Which is fine as far as it goes, but what a shame that we're now not allowed the joy of playing bad guys, robbers, thieves, pimps, embezzlers, murderers and the rest."

HAVING A BALL: Kammy on Sky Sports

Shows fave Chris 'feels like fraud'

■ by ADAM GOLDSMITH

CHRIS Kamara "feels like a fraud" on TV as he battles his speech disorder.

The much-loved pundit quit Sky Sports Soccer Saturday this year after being diagnosed with apraxia.

Kammy, 64, has since fronted ITV's The Games and continued his job as one of the hosts of Ninja Warrior UK, alongside Ben Shephard, 47, and Rochelle Humes, 33. But he admits he wonders if he "should have bowed out" altogether after quitting sports presenting.

He said: "I feel a fraud now in terms of broadcasting. I don't bring to the table what I used to.

"So that's hard, my life away from the screen couldn't be any better.

"But they're tolerating me, that's how it feels."

Kammy was known for shouting, "Unbelievable, Jeff!" to host Jeff Stelling, 67, while reporting on football.

He felt humbled by the respect paid to him when he left Sky.

He added: "That tribute that Sky gave me, that's reserved for someone who passes away, isn't it?"

ON JOB: Ninja hosts

So I think maybe I should have bowed out then, taken the accolades and said, "Thank you."

"Am I tarnishing what I've got and what I had?"

I have been thinking about doing an online production course, to sort of share some of the things I have learnt."

He gushed: "I am so proud to be involved in people's careers at that point. Like Becky was smashing it but she'd never really come to a song front and centre, and been on the artwork or in the music video."

"I didn't understand why that hadn't happened at that point."

RUSSIANS 'TURNED AND FLED'

But lash out in retreat

RUSSIAN forces have "pretty much turned and fled" from the Kharkiv region, former army chief Lord Dannatt said.

The Russian exodus from the area around the city in eastern Ukraine represents a "significant reverse" of their position and a "great success" for Ukrainians, he added.

But he warned Russians were "lashing out" in revenge and Ukraine needs "more and more" Western arms and ammunition to "keep the pressure up".

Lord Dannatt said: "We are witnessing some incredible scenes.

"Although the Ukrainians have made significant advances, there's a lot of their country still in Russian occupation. So there's a long way to go."

Ukraine has recaptured Russian-occupied areas in the Kharkiv region.

Significant quantities of weapons and munitions were left behind as Moscow hastily withdrew its troops to prevent them from being surrounded.

Russia is targeting the country's power and water supplies. In Kharkiv, pedestrians used torches or mobile phones to guide them through darkened streets following the bombardment of a power station.

Lord Dannatt added: "They (Russian officials) know that they've had a significant reverse on the battlefield.

"So they're lashing out in other ways to try to restore their position.

"The resistance and the attitude that you're seeing from the Ukrainian people is, 'We don't like the darkness, we don't like the lack of water but we will win through. They will not break our spirit.'"

ILLNESS: Wood Keith's 'addict' jibe at pal Jo

JO Wood has revealed that hellraiser Keith Richards had the cheek to criticise her for being "addicted" – to organic food.

The ex-wife of Ronnie Wood said she started healthy eating after falling ill. Jo, 67, explained: "If I hadn't detoxed my body, I might have died."

"And I thought, 'From this day onwards, I'm going to be an organic girl'."

"That's how it started and I'm the same still. So I started looking into food, I started growing my own... I became obsessed."

"And Keith said to me, 'The trouble with you darling is you're addicted to organic food'. Yeah right Keith! A terrible thing to be addicted to!"

Jo told the Frankly Speaking podcast she turned to plant-based grub in the 90s when she became ill and was put on steroids.

But her life changed when she met a herbalist.

She said: "He opened up my eyes. He made me realise that nature gives us everything we need and we don't need to mess with it."

IF it's true what they're saying about BBC Radio 2 – that its older listeners are deserting it in droves – then you won't find Graham Dene and his colleagues complaining.

Graham hosts the breakfast show on Boom Radio, a station whose whole purpose is to entertain that 60-plus so-called Boomer generation.

The way he sees it, the Beeb's loss can be Boom's gain, helping it grow bigger still.

"There are something like eight million disenchanted Radio 2 listeners out there, of our age, who don't yet know about us," says Graham, 73, who worked on Liverpool's Radio City before hosting the breakfast show on London's Capital in the 70s and 80s.

"Our task is to keep spreading the word. We're here to fill that Radio 2 void." That void, it seems, is the result of BBC bosses chasing a younger audience. Hence the departure of older Radio 2 presenters such as Steve Wright and Paul O'Grady.

"The BBC have chosen to take a different route," says Graham. "That's up to them. But it's ironic that they do this just as they're making the over-75s start paying the licence fee."

For a station set up only last year, Boom is already, well, booming.

It had 336,000 weekly listeners across the second quarter of this year, according to official ratings. That's 44% up on last year.

"For a station like ours," says Graham, "which doesn't have deep pockets, that's very rewarding."

Unlike many nostalgia-based set-ups, Boom plays a vast and refreshingly unpredictable range of music, freed from rigid playlists, focus groups and the like.

"Mostly it's from the 60s and 70s," says Graham, "but sometimes we'll play something far more recent – and sometimes we'll play something older, because it reminds our listeners of their parents or grandparents. 'Every song a surprise' is what we say."

Even so, Graham describes his own tastes as fairly traditional. "My kids will put on something like Capital Xtra and it actually upsets me," he admits, "because some of it is so obscene."

"When some dreadful rap record comes on, my son will say to me, 'Oh, what a great tune!' But there's no tune there. And as for the lyrics, at one point they'd have never been allowed on the radio."

● Boom Radio is available on DAB, smart speakers, online or via its phone and tablet app. Graham hosts the breakfast show each weekday from 7.30am to 10am.

NOT only did the FBI raid Donald Trump's filing cabinets, but they also rifled through his wife Melania's drawers during their search of his Florida home.

The former First Lady, inset, felt so "violated" that she bought new underwear after hers was rummaged through in the hunt for classified documents.

According to one US report, a "friend" of Mel's said: "This is her home. It's her bedroom."

"Even her husband isn't allowed in her bedroom."

Which begs the question - where does her husband sleep?

A YOB made a big mistake when he picked a fight with a teenage martial arts champ.

Stuart Briggs, 35, told student Alex Williams, 16, he was going to "smash his head in" and added: "I'm going to stab you down the alley."

But Alex - a multiple junior world champion in Brazilian jiu-jitsu - delivered a double leg takedown that was videoed and went viral.

Recalling the attack, Alex - who had a chunk bitten out of his ear that required six stitches - said: "When 'fight or flight' kicks in you've got to choose one or the other and I chose to fight back."

"I was worried in case he had a knife on him, but in situations like that it's about surviving."

The 30-second clip of the attack in Guisborough, North Yorks, shows Briggs, of Middlesbrough, trying to attack Alex for a second time.

Alex, of Redcar, said: "He came back for more so I continued to try to restrain him without hitting him."

Briggs admitted GBH. He was granted unconditional bail by Teesside magistrates and will be sentenced at Teesside Crown Court next month.

EXPLORERS have been blasted for clambering on to a disused cruise ship - risking their lives to climb up the anchor chain.

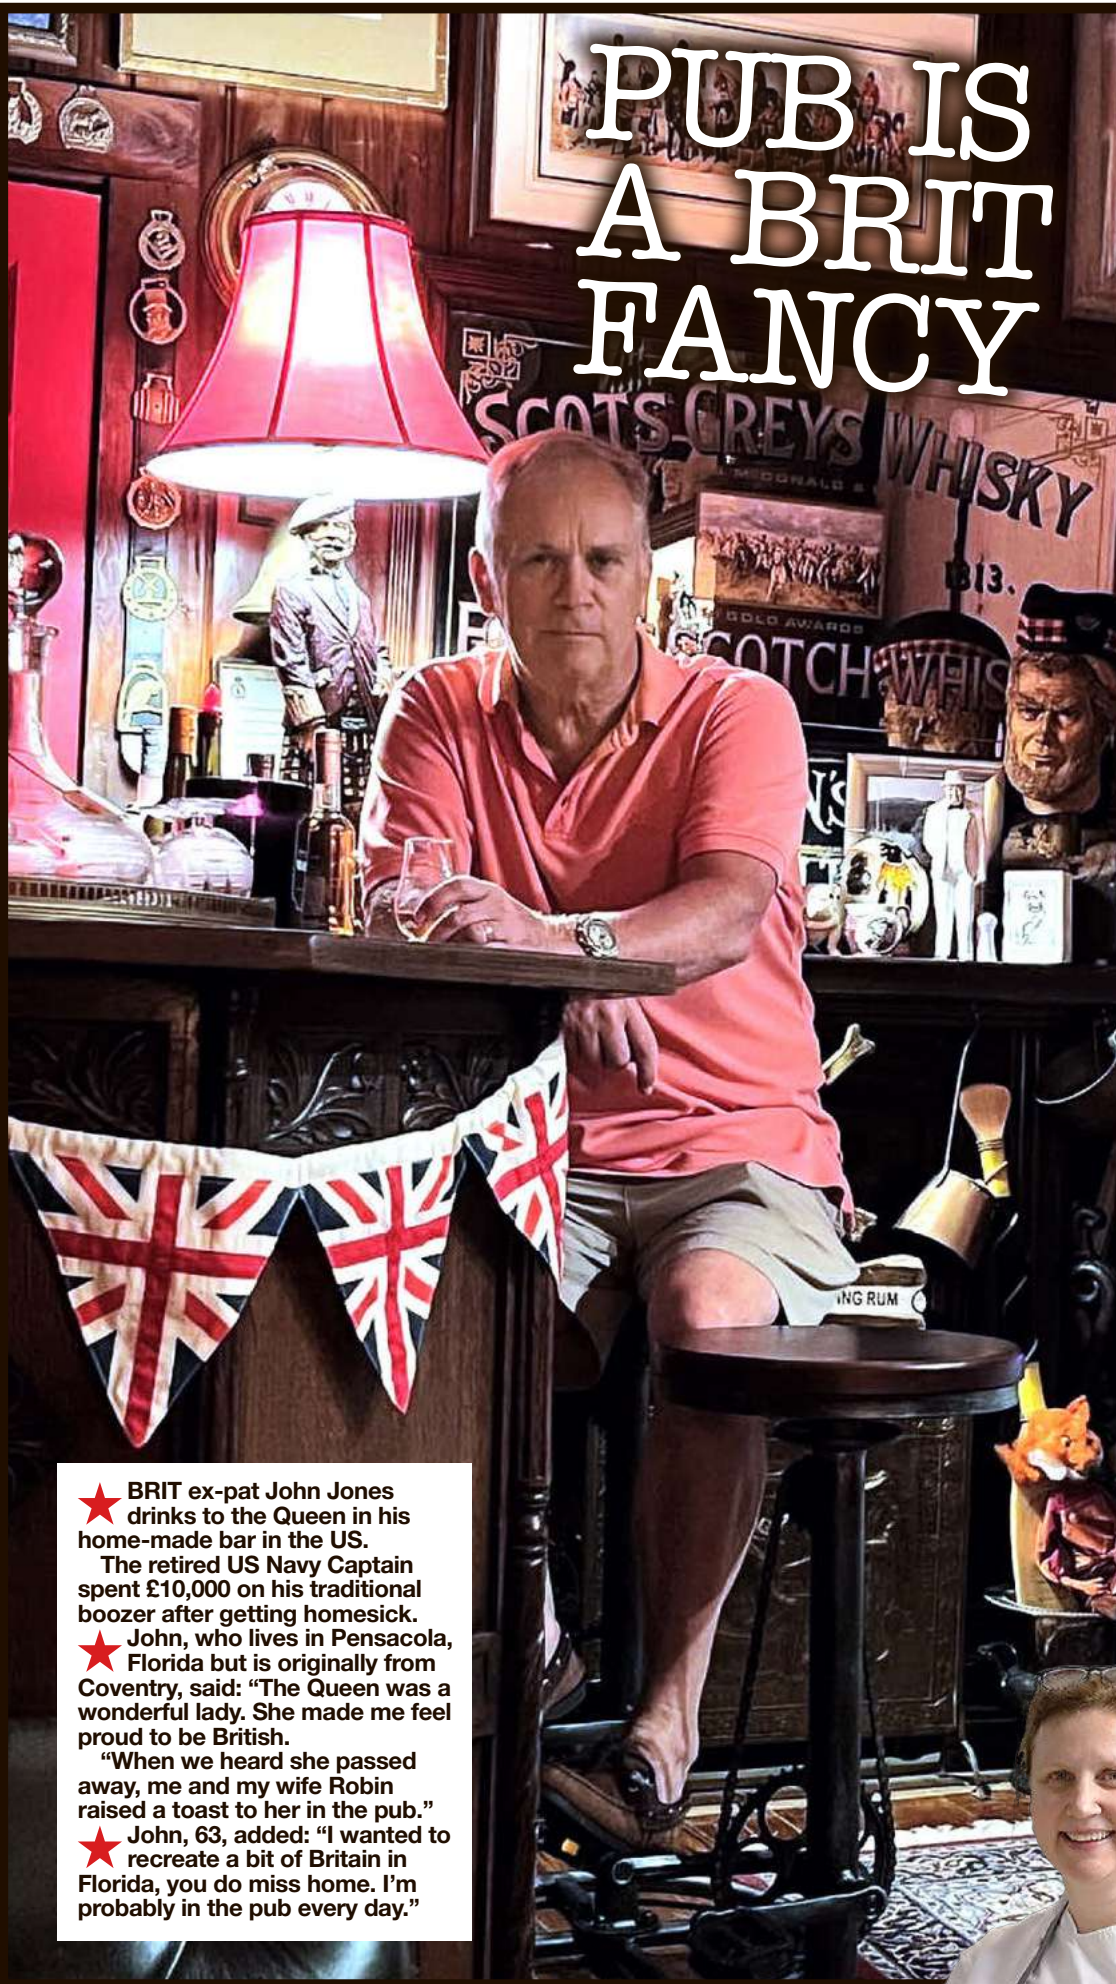

John Rowley, owner of the landmark the Duke of Lancaster, slammed the "urban explorers".

He said: "They climbed over razor-wired fencing, scaled an anchor chain and broke inside after helping others get aboard."

Mr Rowley called the raiders "glorified burglars".

The ship has been in dry dock at Mostyn, north Wales, since 1979. Plans for it to become a leisure site called the Fun Ship stalled.

In the footage, the horse gallops towards the window as the peckish rider leans over the microphone to place his order.

Duke's hits and Misses

NOT only hailed a hero for helping to end the Napoleonic wars the Duke of Wellington, born Arthur Wellesley, also became Prime Minister.

He even fought a duel while in office – in 1829 – with the Earl of Winchilsea, who'd insulted him.

They both missed, perhaps on purpose.

Ironically, Wellington was actually known for his poor aim with a gun, once accidentally shooting a woman doing the laundry outside her cottage while on a hunting trip.

Despite his tough image he wept over his soldiers' deaths.

He also loved playing cricket, gambling and even flamenco dancing.

The Duke was a great wit too. Asked by a vicar if there was anything he wished his sermon to be about he replied: "Yes... about 10 minutes."

Unhappily married, he made plenty of conquests away from the battlefield, using brothels and bedding a string of society beauties.

One of Napoleon's lovers even said he was the better in the sack.

He famously said "publish and be damned" to a mistress who threatened to expose him in her memoirs.

The Duke died on September 14, 1852, aged 83, and was buried in St Paul's Cathedral following a state funeral.

He gave his name to the Wellington boot and Beef Wellington – though he actually preferred mutton to dine on.

The Full Monty

WITH his fighting spirit and trademark beret, Bernard Montgomery was the most charismatic British general of WW2.

He led the Eighth Army to victory over the Germans at the Battle of El Alamein in October 1942, helping to turn the tide of the war against the Nazis in North Africa.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill heralded it the "end of the beginning".

But the short and squeaky voiced Monty was certainly eccentric.

Nicknamed "monkey" at school, he set light to another military cadet's shirt tails and once organised a football match against visiting Germans, ruthlessly defeating them 40-nil.

He didn't drink, smoke or show much interest in romance – failing to woo a woman on a beach by drawing plans of how he would deploy his tanks in the sand. At 38, he finally married a widow who died 10 years later from an infected insect bite.

He loved dogs, cheekily naming his spaniel Rommel, after the German general, and a fox-terrier Hitler, after the dictator.

Monty, who died at 88 in 1976, is said to have inspired the expression "Full Monty" after his habit of starting every day with a full English breakfast.

He also gave his nickname to the comedy troupe Monty Python.

Drake Investigates

SIR Francis Drake was the first Englishman to circumnavigate the globe.

But he is best remembered for famously coming to the nation's rescue by securing victory over the Spanish Armada in 1588, thwarting their invasion.

A favourite of Queen Elizabeth I, he was also a privateer nicknamed "The Dragon" by the Spanish, who thought witchcraft was behind his success at sea.

Less well known is that he also investigated crimes and helped convict a killer.

In 1581 Drake returned to his native Devon, becoming Mayor of Plymouth and later oversaw the county's judiciary.

In 1591 he and other magistrates quizzed Tavistock murder suspect Eulalia Page, accused of murdering her husband so she could run off with a younger man.

She would end up convicted and burned at the stake.

Drake himself died of dysentery while on a voyage off the coast of Panama five years later and was buried at sea in a lead coffin.

Good Lord Nelson

ADMIRAL Lord Nelson famously crushed the Franco-Spanish fleet at the Battle of Trafalgar in 1805, despite overwhelming odds.

Tragically 47-year-old Horatio was killed by a sniper's bullet while on deck of the HMS Victory.

His body came back to Britain in a barrel of brandy. He was buried at St Paul's Cathedral and London's Nelson's Column was built in his honour.

He'd always been brave, having lost his right eye in action and then an arm, amputated without anaesthetic.

But away from the high seas – which made him seasick – the naval hero had a tempestuous love life.

Despite being married to wife Fanny, he began a scandalous and public affair with actress Emma Hamilton, with the knowledge of her ageing ambassador husband, Sir William.

After she became pregnant with Nelson's daughter Horatia, the three even lived together in a bizarre ménage à trois until William's death.

Although Nelson was technically still married, the pair exchanged rings before he left for Trafalgar.

Sadly, despite the Admiral asking the nation to look after her, Emma would die penniless.

Fast living Lawrence

ARCHAEOLOGIST-turned-army-intelligence-officer TE Lawrence would end up going into battle himself during WW1 to help lead an Arab revolt against the Ottoman Empire.

He took part without any military training and wore Arab clothes, hence his later nickname "Lawrence of Arabia".

Lawrence was born out of wedlock and only found out that his mum and dad had pretended to be married after his father's death.

Despite his taste for adventure, Lawrence never seems to have had a relationship. Some historians have suggested he was secretly gay.

Lawrence loved motorbikes and died in 1935, in Dorset, when he crashed one of his seven machines, after swerving to avoid two boys on bicycles.

Off to Bad start..

YOUTUBE personality Chunkz wants to be as big as Ant and Dec.

The lad is starting to get TV work and hopes it'll make him a household name.

Chunkz will be the host of new show Bad Chefs, which starts on Monday at 9pm on ITV2.

And he said: "In TV I'd love the notoriety of Ant and Dec, everyone knows them."

"I feel like I could talk to my aunts from anywhere, in any city and they would be like, 'Yeah, I know Ant and Dec.'"

"That notoriety is definitely one thing I am aiming for and just being recognised by everyone.

"They are people that when growing up, I've always looked up to."

Squid game

AN attraction inspired by Squid Game launches next week.

The digital experience will challenge fans across the UK like the hit Netflix show.

Co-founder Will Dean said: "Playing in our immersive spaces will get players' hearts racing and the use of motion tracking and touch screens in the Gameboxes recreates the games in a way that transports you into the Squid Game world."

'SOAP'S LIKE REAL FAMILY'

MILLIE Gibson broke down in tears when she filmed her final scenes for Corrie.

The actress has quit the soap after three years as Kelly Neelan and it was tough for her.

She said: "I've been a wreck. There were a good two weeks where I was crying constantly because I was so overwhelmed and so grateful for these scenes and the storyline that had been given to me."

In one of her final scenes Millie was hugged by co-star Mikey North and it made her even more emotional.

She added: "As soon as we shot it, I just burst out crying. It was like, 'It's the beginning of the end now.'"

Now she's finished filming, Millie is still upset about leaving the ITV soap.

She said: "We really have become a little family. It's been really hard doing my last scenes with them."

"We've been very emotional. It's just like leaving a family, so it's sad."

BITCH & HITCH!

THESE four singletons will make a surprise arrival in Thursday night's episode of Married At First Sight UK.

They are "romantic at heart" Manchester lass Sophie and Selby lad Johnathan, a "confident, spontaneous adventurer".

Gemma from Devon and Matt of Huddersfield also arrive. An insider said: "Gemma describes herself as a bad bitch. She's fiercely independent, bold and a bit wild. While Matt would like to meet a woman who shares his passion for life and isn't afraid to try new things."

AMERICAN science fiction drama Paper Girls has been axed.

Execs at streaming service Prime Video have pulled the plug on it after just one series.

The show, which starred Adina Porter, had rave reviews from fans and critics.

HotTV CHOICE With Mike Ward

Let the drool-a-thon begin! Or maybe that's just me while watching THE GREAT BRITISH BAKE OFF (8pm, C4), returning to our screens tonight for another 10-week run.

I'm no more likely to crack out a Victoria sponge than I am to tip an Uber driver, but watching those eager amateur bakers creaming butter and sugar together with the earnestness of scientists splitting the atom is always a joy.

And seeing the cakes piled high feels like a celebration of life. Tonight, hosts Matt Lucas and Noel Fielding welcome 12 new contestants into the famous tent, while judges Prue Leith and Paul Hollywood limber up ahead of chomping their way through the three opening rounds.

Tonight's signature bake, getting this year's contest up and running, requires the contestants to knock up 12 perfect mini cakes. The technical challenge then asks them to make a traditional sponge. And to round off this first programme, each must then produce a sponge-cake showstopper, designed to resemble a home (in miniature, obviously) that's particularly close to their hearts.

As for which of them to root for, take your pick. This year's amateur bakers are a nicely mixed bunch of characters, including an 18-year-old, two grandmothers and a nuclear scientist.

Elsewhere, in EASTENDERS (9.30pm, BBC One), a less-than-happy Kat demands answers from ex-husband Alfie. Why, she wants to know, has he chosen to show his face again after all this time, just as she's preparing to marry Phil Mitchell?

JUST JANE

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES
YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY
... AND EVERY DAY

Is she a secret lesbian?

MY new job requires me to travel a lot.

Every time I go away my girl gets her mate to stay over.

But I find it odd that instead of sleeping in the spare room this girl sleeps in our bed.

My girl swears she's 100% loyal and would never cheat. She says she adores her mate and simply doesn't like sleeping alone.

But they are very tactile and touchy-feely in general. More than once I've walked in to find them snuggled up on the sofa.

Once they were even end-to-end in the bath. Am I being played?

JANE SAYS: Perhaps you should ask your girlfriend what her definition of cheating actually is.

Is she conducting an emotional affair with her girlfriend?

Your girl is entitled to have friends and enjoy closeness and security, but where is the line drawn?

Does she really need to get naked and plunge into the bath with her mate?

Be honest about what you are prepared to put up with.

Talk about trust and the fears and insecurities you experience when you're away.

The situation isn't working for you and something really needs to change.

I'm counting cost of pal's hols fling

WON'T PAY HER SHARE

A FRIEND owes me hundreds of pounds for a holiday – and is refusing to pay me back.

She says she shouldn't be expected to cough up because her plans changed during our fortnight away.

In short, she met a man on the beach on our third day in Spain. They fell instantly in lust, and she hardly spoke to us again.

If she wasn't bonking him on the sands, she was back at his apartment drinking and partying with his mates.

Furious

Anytime we spotted her in a bar or club she almost pretended that she didn't know us. One night she was dancing on a podium, and I waved. She batted me away because I was cramping her style. I was furious.

Now we're back and she's arguing because she only spent a few nights in our villa.

She didn't eat much of our food and believes she shouldn't have to pay for the cleaner because she didn't make any mess.

I'm so angry because she was the one who badgered me to ask my uncle if his villa was free.

I was reluctant to approach him because he's been so generous in the past, but he very kindly said that he had two weeks free at

Picture posed by models

GIVE ME A BREAK: Friend spent the holiday romping with a fella and now won't cough up the end of August, but we'd have to pay "mates' rates". I relayed this to my pal, her cousin and another friend and we agreed to contribute £300 each, plus put cash in a kitty for a cleaner and supermarket shops.

I understand she was hardly with us, but that was her choice.

Where do I go from here when she can be stubborn and nasty?

JANE SAYS: Your friend clearly thinks she's being very clever.

Having agreed to go on the holiday with you and two pals, she found a local Romeo. Instead of hanging out in your uncle's villa, she chose instead to run around town with a new crowd.

Admittedly, she hardly used the property and didn't join you for drinks or meals but that had nothing to do with you.

Has no-one told her that she behaved in an incredibly selfish and childish way?

She was fully entitled to enjoy a holiday romance, but who dumps all her friends for the best part of a fortnight?

Does she have any concept of loyalty or the importance of a pre-arranged plan? Four of you flew out, but only three of you hung out together and now she's trying to get out of paying her share with the very flimsiest of excuses.

Shame on her. I suggest you add up everything she owes and send her the bill.

Tell her an agreement is an agreement, and you would never have approached your uncle if it wasn't for her.

Is she broke? Does she need time to pay? Do you need to speak to other family members or even a solicitor?

Whatever happens, you can never trust her again because the only person she cares about is herself.

Fed-up of wine binges

MY line manager drinks very heavily.

She doesn't like to booze alone so drags me down the local wine bar. I'm sick of paying her bill, putting her in a cab and fighting her off as she tries to snog me.

She goes crazy when I try to go home after one glass.

I've just met a great guy who I'd like to spend more time with but my boss is bitter and jealous. She says vile things about him.

The truth is, I don't want to go out with her anymore. I'm sick of being used.

JANE SAYS: Would it be possible to level with your boss when you're both sober and she's in a reasonable mood?

Could you try to explain that you have other commitments now?

Tell her that you're happy to join her for the occasional tipple on special occasions – but things have moved on and you can't drink as before.

Sadly, if that's going to get you the sack or the cold shoulder, then maybe you need to start looking for a new job.

Check out the Acas website for more information on work-based rights.

Also, is anyone able to suggest she visits www.alcoholics-anonymous.org.uk?

Not happening on my watch!

MY husband has announced he's always wanted to own a classic watch, like James Bond's. He wants to plunder our joint account, insisting it's a good investment.

I've said forget it, but this idea is not going away and is becoming a real sticking point. Our rows are increasing.

JANE SAYS: Can a compromise be found? Could he buy the watch with a brother or trusted family member? I've heard of people sharing such things. You and he don't know what's around the corner and must be prepared for future expenses. Stand up for yourself.

Are there other, bigger, problems within your relationship that need to be tackled too?

12 PAGES OF FANTASTIC STARSPORT START WITH RACING

HOLD YOUR HORSES

■ by CHRIS GOULDING

ROYAL trainers have withdrawn The Queen's horses from their entries this week out of respect for Her Majesty.

Juryman, Mellow Yellow, Reach For The Moon and Spring Is Sprung have all been taken out of their intended races.

This year The Queen had celebrated 21 winners from the 39 horses that had carried her famous silks.

As for the future of the royal racehorses, John Gosden, who received an OBE from the Queen in 2017, said: "Of course nothing is forever, we sort of thought it would be, it seemed The Queen was immortal.

"But I think King Charles and Camilla, his wife, she's very keen on horses, hopefully the great tradition of the Royal Family will continue."

Gosden, responsible for training 13 winners for The Queen, gave an insight into that honour.

"I remember very well when she saw Enable at our stables," recalled Gosden. "Frankie Dettori was here, and decided to be the master of ceremonies.

"So when Enable was brought round, Frankie looked at Enable and said, 'You may think you're the queen, but this is the real Queen!' Her Majesty found that very amusing."

Gosden will miss the telephone calls to Her Majesty on the day she had a runner. "The trainers at 10 o'clock would call, you were given your slot. They were always wonderful conversations.

For us it was very thrilling to talk one-to-one like that."

Dawn raid for Kingy

■ by JASON HEAVEY

ALAN KING has the habit of slipping in the occasional big priced juvenile winner.

DAWN VEGA (6.00, nap) could be another tonight at Wolverhampton.

The son of Lope De Vega has shown promise in his two races and the 160,000 guineas purchase would have been closer on his latest start but was hampered.

He was then given a very tender ride and that kindness could be repaid today in a weaker race.

Later in the card DAYMAN (7.30) goes well on the sand and has a solid chance.

Each-way backers could do worse than have a few quid on GLENN ETIVE (1.35) in the first race at Yarmouth.

He has shown some speed in his last two starts and could take some catching if he can break quickly.

ACE CARLOS IS 'MESSI AND RONALDO COMBINED'

TEEN sensation Carlos Alcaraz has been told he has the star quality of "Ronaldo, Maradona and Messi combined".

And the Spaniard's coach has warned that the youngest-ever world No.1 has reached only 60 per cent of his potential after his stunning US Open triumph.

Fan favourite Alcaraz (left) heralded the start of a new age in men's tennis by lifting his first Major title. He beat new world No.2 Casper Ruud in a thrilling final full of outrageous rallies 6-4 2-6 7-6 6-3 amid raucous scenes in the Arthur Ashe Stadium.

■ From NEIL McLEMAN in New York

Chants of "Ole, ole, ole, Carlos, Carlos" rang around the biggest stage in tennis like a football match.

Alcaraz, at 19, is the youngest Grand Slam winner since Rafa Nadal at the 2005 French Open but Amazon Prime analyst Greg Rusedski (inset) compared the Real Madrid supporter, who plays every point like a cup final, to football's recent greats.

He said: "Djokovic was the best mover before him. Before that it was Federer.

"This guy is like watching Ronaldo, Maradona and Messi combined as one as an athlete. He is just off the charts. He could win over 20 Majors." His coach Juan Carlos Ferrero said: "I think he's on 60 per cent of his game. He can improve a lot of things.

"Once you get to the No.1, it's not done. He knows and I know that we have to keep working."

Alcaraz said: "I came here just to enjoy - to smile on court and to enjoy playing tennis.

"It's crazy for me. I've never thought that I was going to achieve something like that at 19 years old.

"It is incredible to create history being the youngest world No.1 but it is even more difficult to do what the Big Three have done, to stay there for 20 years.

"I don't want to compare myself to them, but I'm going to try to be even a little like them."

BORZ OF NATURE

Obsessed Chimaev lives for gym

ONE of the scariest fighters to ever step foot inside the octagon, Khamzat Chimaev - described as an "absolute f***** freak of nature" by UFC president Dana White - has revealed the one thing that keeps him up at night.

However, this chink in the armour of 'Borz', who is unbeaten in 12 fights, with his last six wins in the UFC, won't help out any of his next opponents/victims.

Having dismantled Kevin Holland at UFC 279 in Las Vegas, clamping on a D'Arce choke to get the tap out in less than half a round, Chimaev doubled down on just how much his whole life revolves around MMA.

Having failed to make the welterweight limit for his intended clash with Nate Diaz, the card was reshuffled, but Chimaev said: "I've made 170 before, so why not (again)?"

"But I am going to go back and listen to my coach. If he says, 'Go 170', we go 170. If he says, 'Go heavyweight', we go heavyweight.

"We don't stop training - we head home and I'll go straight back into the gym.

"The gym is my life. I am scared about that. What am I going to do when I finish my career? I am not a guy who can sit and write or do any of that s***. All I can do is fight until I die.

"I feel alive when I am in trouble. When I win my fights I feel alive. When I am fighting I feel alive. When somebody doesn't like me I feel alive. It is my life. In the cage I become a different person, I become a warrior, but after the fight I become normal Khamzat."

While most people would still be a little intimidated to bump into 'normal Khamzat', the Chechen-born Swede is generous with his time with people who earn his respect.

Despite a backstage altercation in the build-up to their late-notice bout, Holland has an open invitation to travel to Stockholm's Allstar Training Centre.

Chimaev added: "Kevin is actually a nice guy. Sometimes we don't like each other before the fight, which is normal as we are coming for a war.

"Now, if he wants to come to my gym and be one of us... he is a nice guy, a tough guy and has a lot of things to learn.

"We are both young guys and maybe we will meet again, otherwise he can come to Sweden (to train) and I will help him."

Birmingham's Leon Edwards is now on Chimaev's hit list after winning the welterweight title, with the 28-year-old saying: "Everyone wants to fight for the title, that's why we are here. I am happy for the guy (Edwards), he has the belt, but when I have the chance, I am going to take it."

UP NEXT UFC Vegas 60, Sunday, 12am. Top Chinese prospect Song Yadong takes a step up in competition when he faces the experienced Cory Sandhagen at bantamweight.

DON'T MISS Chidi Njokuani challenges Gregory Rodrigues at middleweight in what promises to be a don't-blink-or-you-will-miss-it fight.

FINAL SAY "Thank you for the love and everything. This means the world to me." No one enjoys their job more than Chris Barnett, who applauded the fans in Vegas after his win over fellow heavyweight Jake Collier.

EUBANK THREAT TO STOP FIGHT

CHRIS EUBANK Sr is threatening to pull his son out of his clash with Conor Benn.

Eubank Jr, 32, is set to meet Benn on October 8 at the O2 in London in a battle of the sons of two British boxing legends.

The pair's fight is set for a 157lb catchweight contest which is 3lb lighter than Eubank has ever tipped the scales in his career.

Currently the fight is not off but Eubank Sr wants his son pulled out because of the weight. There is also a rehydration clause which means Eubank Jr cannot put on more than a set amount between Friday's weigh-in and a check weigh-in at 11am on Saturday, believed to be less than 10lb.

■ by CHRIS McKENNA

Eubank Sr (inset) said: "My son's life cannot be put in danger. I've already lost one. It can't happen again." His son Sebastian died last year after he suffered a heart attack while swimming in Dubai.

He added: "I've given him my direction. If he doesn't want to follow it, he will be dragged along. But he will do what is right for him.

"He is coming down 1oz below 160lbs which cannot happen on my watch.

"This is modern-day 'gladiating', this is not a play thing for the audience."

CRICKET: THIRD TEST

■ from DEAN WILSON at The Oval

OLLIE ROBINSON has promised to be even fitter to take on the challenge of Pakistan after returning to the England side in a blaze of glory.

Robinson picked up the player-of-the-match gong at The Oval after starring in the last two games which England won to take the series against South Africa.

Robinson was hauled over the coals for his lack of fitness in Australia, where he struggled to stay on the field and maintain his quality day after day and spell after spell.

He also toured the West Indies without ever getting on to the field, much to the dismay of his team-mates and coaches.

But with captain Ben Stokes (inset) giving him a few home truths and urging him to get the hard work done to make his body fit for purpose, the 28-year-old is reaping the rewards and is set to have a big role to play when the team tour Pakistan for the first time in 17 years this winter.

"It's been tough and I've been in a dark place at times but the hard work I put in over the past six months has allowed me to enjoy the last two weeks more than I would have before," said Robinson, whose 5-49 in the first innings set England on course for victory.

"A year ago I would have felt sore, but I feel good, like I could bowl again. I feel in a much better place in that sense and the ball has been coming out nicely.

"I've not toured Pakistan before so it will be interesting to see what the ball does. I have eight weeks to learn about the balls, the surfaces and their players.

"I'll have a week off to try to get even fitter for that Pakistan trip. It will be harder out there, conditions will be tougher. So I'll push on."

Robinson will also be calling on the experience of others who know what it is like to bowl in Pakistan.

Jimmy Anderson is the only current player who was on the last tour to Pakistan in 2005. He didn't play in the two-Test series, only the ODIs that followed.

Pakistan seamer Mohammad Abbas is another who Robinson has spoken to during their battles in the county game about what to expect.

"It is a privilege to play with and learn from Jimmy," added Robinson. "Off the field the knowledge he and Broady have given me is invaluable.

"I've spoken to Mohammad Abbas a few times over the past couple of years, too, when he's been in the county setup. He looks to wobble the ball out there when it's new and gets rewards, then holds it up when it gets a bit older."

OLLIE'S INTO OVERDRIVE

England pace ace determined to be fitter, faster, better

England cruised to victory with the loss of just Alex Lees yesterday, completing a victory in what amounted to just over two days, given that rain wiped out the first day and the second was called off as a day of mourning after the death of The Queen.

Zak Crawley and Ollie Pope knocked off the 33 runs needed to complete a 2-1 series win and a fine comeback and Stokes – named player of the series – wants the revival to gather pace.

"When we go to Pakistan it's going to be a completely different environment that we find ourselves in," he said.

"We will more than likely be faced with a lot more spin and it's how we find a method of counteracting that, but in the same positive mindset."

"We want to keep continuing the form we've shown, and the way in which we've played. Walk towards that danger of what Pakistan is going to throw at us.

"It's a hot country and you are not going to get anywhere near as much assistance with the ball as you do in England. But we want to show that in different situations we can still try to put the pressure back on to the opposition."

TIME WE ROCKED AUSSIES

From Back Page
sting of losing the Ashes 4-0 at the start of this year is still raw.

"I think when you know you have an Ashes coming up very soon, it's hard not to look at it, especially with how the last Ashes trip went," said Stokes.

"I am excited by the Ashes next summer, especially with the way we are playing and a lot is getting spoken about how we are playing Test cricket.

"I am looking forward to the challenge, and that is a different challenge, because we know how good Australia are. We have got to concentrate on Pakistan first and then look to plan for Australia."

This summer, New Zealand, India and South Africa were all vanquished in some style by Stokes and his ultra-aggressive team.

They did it, too, with several players unavailable –including Jofra Archer and Mark Wood – which makes the promise of next summer even more exciting.

"It's a great thing to think about," added Stokes.

"Who knows how far we can take this side over the next couple of years? You add Jofra and Woody into the mix being fully fit – it's scary to think where things could go, especially with the ball.

"And the batters that we've got coming through, and everything like that, means it's a very high ceiling for this team."

Meanwhile, Mark Boucher is to step down as South Africa's head coach.

Cricket South Africa said Boucher, who oversaw the Test series defeat by England, wants to "pursue other opportunities" and would not be seeing out his contract.

■ STRESSFUL: Powell is desperate to be back from injury to fire Wigan to the Grand Final

Wigan star Sam hopes for Final say

SAM POWELL is desperate to get the green light to return this week and finally put his season's woes behind him.

The hooker missed Wigan's Challenge Cup triumph in May after copping a six-match ban for a crusher tackle.

His hopes of helping the Warriors' Grand Final bid then took a serious blow when he suffered a stress fracture in his foot in July.

Powell, 30, has missed the last six games and admits he wondered if his play-off hopes were in doubt.

He said: "I'd be lying if I said no. I didn't realise it was as bad as it was at first and didn't think it would take as long as it has to recover."

"I thought I'd be back after four weeks and it's been frustrating that it's ended up being longer."

"But I trained with the team last week and managed to get through it fine and hopefully this week will be the same."

Powell has appeared in five Grand Finals, winning two, and says he is experienced enough to go straight back in for Friday's semi-final with Leeds.

He said: "I've played enough to know where I am. I sulked for a few days when I knew I'd miss the Challenge Cup final but it's all about the team and I was thankful they won it."

"Now I'd love us to make the next two weeks really special by winning the Grand Final. Some lads are leaving and assistant coach Lee Briers is too. He's been great so it would be good to have a real crack at winning it for him."

■ EXCLUSIVE by JULIE STOTT

Powell's mid-season suspension meant teenager Brad O'Neill got an unexpected Challenge Cup final appearance against Huddersfield.

O'Neill, now 20, has also filled in over the last few weeks with advice and help from Powell.

He added: "I want to be a coach so I've spent a bit more time with Brad."

"He's a really good player and now I don't know who Matt Peet is going to select. I just hope I get picked."

■ ON THE BALL: Brad O'Neill has stepped up in the absence of Powell

WHY ROBY DARES TO WIN

JAMES ROBY has revealed his dream role when his playing career ends – living out SAS fantasies.

Super League's record appearance maker hopes to make history by leading St Helens to a fourth successive title next week.

But the hooker, 36 (right), who has signed on for a 20th season with his hometown club next year, says it is a TV challenge that he would love to do.

■ by JULIE STOTT

He said: "The military has always appealed to me, the SAS or Special Forces – I would love nothing more than that. I love 'SAS: Who Dares Wins'. I'd go on that show."

His more immediate target is seeing off surprise play-off semi-finalists Salford at home on Saturday. The Red Devils breathed a sigh of relief yesterday when full-back Ryan Brierley escaped a ban for a shoulder charge in the play-off win over Huddersfield.

Coach Paul Rowley, who has star half-back Brodie Croft out injured, said: "The referee was right to sin-bin Ryan but that punishment was enough."

Trinity chop Poch

■ by JULIE STOTT

WILLIE POCHING has been sacked by Wakefield, despite Trinity's great end-of-season form.

Four wins in their last five games hauled the club clear of relegation and up to 10th spot but they struggled at the bottom end of the table all season.

Chairman John Minards, who sacked assistant Francis Cummins too, said:

"These decisions are never easy and this one is particularly difficult, given the tremendous effort, passion and energy Willie and Franny have brought to the club. Willie will always be a legend at Wakefield."

■ GIL DUDSON will serve a three-match ban for a head-butt when he starts with Warrington next year.

The prop is one of three Catalans players punished following their play-off defeat to Leeds. Dylan Napa and Mitchell Pearce also got suspensions.

■ TONY SMITH has been given a two-year deal as Hull head coach, with responsibility for all rugby matters at the club.

■ WIGAN full-back Jai Field has been voted player of the year by the RL Writers and Broadcasters Association.

SHAW FIRE DANGER

Euro hero Luke is facing England World Cup axe

LUKE SHAW is bracing himself for World Cup heartbreak.

The Manchester United defender was one of the shining lights as England reached the Euro 2020 final last summer.

He even opened the scoring against Italy before Gareth Southgate's men lost out in penalty heartbreak.

But the star has endured a difficult start to the season after suffering a foot problem and has lost his starting place at club level to new signing Tyrell Malacia.

Shaw does not expect to be included in Southgate's squad on Thursday when the England boss announces his plans for the Nations League games away to Italy a week on Friday and Germany at home three days later.

With World Cup selection so close, it means Shaw's form and fitness now places a huge question mark over his presence in Qatar.

Southgate is not expected to spring any surprises because he believes it is now too late for someone to gate-crash his final squad.

He is likely to resist calling up Brentford striker Ivan Toney, who has made an impressive start to the season, but is expected to recall Marcus Rashford, who has been in international exile since July 2021. The United forward has returned to something like his best form in recent weeks and is desperate to be recalled.

■ by JEREMY CROSS

Southgate also faces a huge dilemma when it comes to Rashford's team-mate Harry Maguire.

The defender has lost his place in the United side after being axed by Erik ten Hag and Southgate has made a point in the past of not picking stars who are not playing regularly at club level.

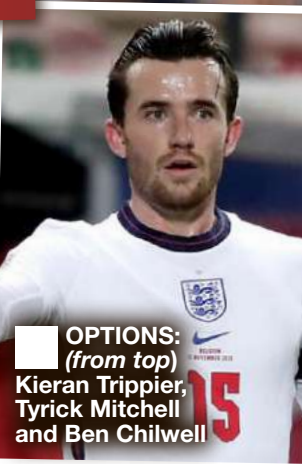

But Maguire has been an ever-present for Southgate in recent years and it's doubtful the England boss would be willing to turn his back on the experienced 29-year-old.

The news could be more grim for Shaw, however, and missing the World Cup would be a major blow to the full-back.

Since joining United from Southampton in 2014, in a £30m deal to become the most expensive teenager in world football, Shaw has suffered horrendous luck with injuries.

He was part of the England squad that flopped at the World Cup in Brazil in 2014, but missed the next two major tournaments and has won just 21 caps in eight years.

Kevin is De best for Phil

■ by JEREMY CROSS

PHIL FODEN says Manchester City's Kevin De Bruyne is the greatest he's ever played with.

City legends David Silva and Sergio Aguero are two of the most decorated players in the club's history, having won 29 major trophies between them during their time at the Etihad.

Both of them now have statues outside the stadium to commemorate all their achievements in helping make City the dominant force in English football.

Foden admits he idolised Silva growing up but believes Belgium ace De Bruyne is just ahead of the Spanish sensation.

He said: "When I was watching football and growing up I loved David Silva."

"But seeing Kevin De Bruyne every day in training, the things he does! He's an unbelievable player, probably the best player I've played with."

Foden has established himself as one the best young players in Europe and will be part of Gareth Southgate's England squad going to the World Cup in Qatar this winter, providing he is fit.

The attacking midfielder

GREATEST: Foden is in awe of De Bruyne (top)

used to love watching the likes of David Beckham and Wayne Rooney when he was younger, and admits he was shocked the so-called 'Golden Generation' never went on to win a major trophy for the Three Lions.

Foden added: "Just watching football on the TV, seeing big players play football, I just wanted to be like them."

"I used to go to the park to play every day wishing I could be one of them one day."

"I used to like Beckham and Rooney when I was watching England."

"I thought we should have won something back in the Euros and things. That team was unbelievable."

PAGE PENS LONG-TERM DRAGONS DEAL

ROB PAGE has finally been rewarded with a long-term contract for leading Wales to this winter's World Cup.

Former No.2 Page was promoted into the manager's hot seat on an interim basis for Euro 2020 last summer once Ryan Giggs was placed on 'special leave' almost two years ago.

Page (right) has since led his country to their first World Cup since 1958 and has now been confirmed as the new

■ by JAMES NURSEY

Dragons boss on a four-year deal.

He said: "There is no bigger honour than coaching your national team and I can't wait for the challenge the next four years will bring, starting with our first World Cup in 64 years."

"This is an exciting time for Welsh football and I hope we can make the country proud in November and continue our success by qualifying for more major tournaments in the future." Page, who has been in charge for 24 games, took over after Giggs was arrested in November 2020 before the ex-Manchester United winger officially stood down in June ahead of his domestic violence trial.

Page's fresh terms will include qualification campaigns for both Euro 2024 and the World Cup in 2026.

FAW president Steve Williams said: "The World Cup is the perfect opportunity to show Wales on the world stage and I am positive that Rob is the best person for the role, in Qatar and beyond."

Skipper Gareth Bale, who lead the calls for ex-defender Page to fill the role long term, is set to be named in the squad tomorrow for this month's Nations League matches. Wales head to Belgium on September 22 before hosting Poland in Cardiff three days later.

SERIOUSLY football NEW MAN ON THE BRIDGE

POTTER SHOT

Graham plans to write history with 'amazing' club

■ by JOHN CROSS
GRAHAM POTTER is determined to write his own piece of Chelsea history after promising to compete for trophies.

The former Brighton boss, 47, will take charge of his first Chelsea game against Red Bull Salzburg in the Champions League tomorrow night after his "whirlwind" arrival at Stamford Bridge.

The recruitment of Birmingham-born Potter, who has signed a five-year deal worth in excess of £50m, is a major departure from big names like Jose Mourinho or Thomas Tuchel.

And he has no doubt that he can be successful in his own way and bring a new era to the club as he spoke ambitiously about the future.

"The history of the club speaks for itself, but it's about trying to create that again in our own way," said Potter.

"It's an amazing history, fantastic tradition, a historic football club. You only have to walk around the place here and you see the pictures, trophies, names. It's incredible and it's a huge honour for me to be part of that now.

"It's about creating a team that competes, that has respect for each other, that is honest, that works together, so a combination of football and human values that we try to work with.

"It's nice to be able to take the next step and to be able to work with an exciting group of players that we have here and compete at the top, try and create a winning team and that's a fantastic opportunity for me.

"It's the start of a really exciting period. I was really excited and impressed (by the new ownership), firstly as people and then the vision for the club and what they wanted to do."

Chelsea co-owners Todd Boehly (inset, right) and Behdad Eghbali went for Potter because they saw him as a risk-taker, innovative and a strong leader.

But it must still be seen as something of a gamble because they have gone from a big name in Tuchel to a manager who even laughed at his own first name for not being very sexy.

Potter did spell out his approach to man-management and being able to handle big egos in the dressing room but also called on the Blues fans to keep getting behind the team to maintain

BOSSING IT: Graham Potter at Chelsea's Cobham training ground and (below) making his way as Ostersunds manager in 2018

Stamford Bridge's strong atmosphere. "I try to find some common ground, try to build relationships, try to communicate effectively on a daily basis and build respect, trust and honesty, so my starting point would always be the person first," added Potter.

"I think that you have to understand that they're human beings first, and the key thing is to try to understand them, understand what motivates them and understand what they're like as people.

"Chelsea is a really, really tough place to play. I'm looking forward to being on the other end of that and getting that support with the team because it's amazing, the atmosphere is fantastic and it's something I'm looking forward to.

"It's one of those places that fills you with incredible excitement when you come as an away team. The crowd are always very, very passionate, they're always getting behind the home side."

Potter admits that he has taken risks in his career – such as moving to Ostersunds in Sweden – but it has improved him as a coach and a person.

He added: "In order to get better you have to take a little step outside of what's comfortable and our job as coaches is to provide the players that opportunity to do that. Everybody wants to improve, to compete, to be part of something.

"Life is about taking risks, it's about doing something that's a bit outside of what you're comfortable with."

MOTIVATED: Costa

Excited Costa's fired up

DIEGO COSTA is itching to reignite his Premier League career after easing Wolves' striker crisis.

The former Chelsea frontman has signed a deal until the end of the season.

Wolves had to appeal for a work permit as the Brazilian did not automatically qualify and the free agent's initial application was rejected.

Costa, 33, said: "It's a first-class club with very good players and playing in the Premier League again was the main thing."

"The club influenced my decision, not only from a technical point of view and with the quality of the players, but also from the fact that a lot of the players are Portuguese and that will make my transition that much smoother."

"Bruno Lage told me about returning to the Premier League and this is a championship I have related to quite a bit."

"No matter how much I enjoyed playing in Madrid, I felt discouraged, but this motivated me. It lit that fire within me."

Costa arrives with Wolves having lost £15m signing Sasa Kalajdzic to a serious knee injury.

He has been a free agent since January after leaving Atletico Mineiro in Brazil.

Rogic in the Bag

WEST BROM have snapped up former Celtic star Tom Rogic on a one-year deal.

The Aussie midfielder, 29, left the Scottish champions at the end of last season.

West Brom are back in action at home to Birmingham tomorrow night and Rogic said: "I was looking for a change of scenery and a fresh challenge. I didn't just want to rush into anything."

"I had some time to reflect and I now feel refreshed, re-energised and excited about the future. I'm really looking forward to getting started at Albion."

The Baggies have made a slow start with one win in their eight league games.

Manager Steve Bruce said: "Tom has proven to be a quality player, a serial winner and a top professional."

ANTONIO CONTE went down to Buckingham Palace "like a normal person" to mourn The Queen.

With football postponed last week-end, Conte wore a hat to keep a low profile and headed across London with his brother Daniele to join the hundreds of thousands paying their respects.

The Tottenham boss said: "On Friday I went to Buckingham Palace like a normal person, because I am a normal person!"

"I did it with a hat to live this situation because I think for sure we will remember this for the rest of our lives."

"I want to give condolences from me, from the club, from the players to the Royal family."

"Then football has to go ahead and we will do it, but I think the Premier League made an important decision to stop football and show respect for the death of The Queen."

Spurs are due to wear black armbands and hold a minute's silence ahead of tonight's Champions League tie against Sporting Lisbon.

Conte said: "For sure what happened in the last few days in England is something extraordinary."

"Honestly, on Thursday, we were all sad because we are talking about a person that her service for this country was outstanding."

"She was 96 years old and honestly for me it was very difficult to believe she was dead, because in your mind you think that The Queen was immortal."

"To live this situation in London, in this specific moment, for sure I will keep this in my heart, in my mind for the rest of my life."

Conte admitted the postponement of last weekend's game against Manchester City allowed his men to recover from last week's Champions League win over Marseille.

With the exception of Lucas Moura, they are now ready to rumble again.

The Italian added: "Not playing on Saturday has given us the chance to recover better. The situation has changed because when you play every two or three days, it is very difficult."

"You need to rotate because the players need rest, otherwise you risk injuries."

Sporting boss Ruben Amorim has tipped ex-Spurs playmaker Marcus Edwards to win an England call-up.

London-born Edwards, 23, left Tottenham two years ago without making a Premier League appearance.

Amorim said: "Marcus is a very talented player. He can get much better. He can even get to the English national team."

Conway celebrated the end of his teenage years five weeks ago by blowing out the candles and tucking into his favourite chocolate treat.

Four days later, the Bristol City striker scored twice against Coventry in the Carabao Cup and now has six goals and two assists.

"You need to ask my mum what was in that cake because she made it – I just ate it!" said Conway. "I feel I worked hard in the summer so I came back in as fit as I could be. I was flying in pre-season, scoring a couple of goals."

"I knew when my chance came, I'd be ready for it. I didn't expect it to be as early as this but I had confidence in myself that I could take it."

Conway (left) has won the EFL's Young Player of the Month for August because of his red-hot form.

"I can't believe a month ago I hadn't scored one goal," said Conway, who started at City's academy aged seven. "Now here I am with six goals, two assists. It doesn't sound real."

Conway showed potential during a loan spell at Bath City in the National League South when he scored 11 times in 16 games but his time there came to an abrupt end when lockdown halted their season.

City boss Nigel Pearson (inset) promoted him to the first team within weeks of taking over and he made his senior debut in April 2021.

Conway said: "In the gaffer's first training session, I got called up to train with the first team. I've been involved since then. It's happened so quickly."

City are fourth in the Championship, just three points behind leaders Sheffield

United, and tomorrow travel to Norwich, who are second.

FANS BACKLASH OVER CALL-OFFS

From Back Page last week due to a rail strike that has now been cancelled but it remains off due to the same policing issues.

The move follows the postponement of all football last weekend as a mark of respect to the late Queen.

Extra officers from around the country have been deployed to London to help prepare for Her Majesty's state funeral on Monday.

Seven games do go ahead, starting with Fulham's trip to Nottingham Forest and Aston Villa's clash with Southampton which are both on Friday night.

But the decision to cancel three games has left their clubs' fans seething and accusing Prem chiefs of not caring about them on social media.

With the international break starting next week, Leeds will have no game until hosting Aston Villa on October 2 - almost a month since their last outing at Brentford.

No new dates have been agreed and a Premier League statement said:

"Following extensive consultation with clubs, police, local Safety Advisory Groups and other relevant authorities, there was no other option but to postpone the three fixtures.

"The Premier League would like to thank the UK Football Policing Unit and police forces across the country, as well as our broadcast partners, for their support and will continue to liaise with them."

There was bad news for Mikel Arteta and his Arsenal side too.

Their Europa League home clash with PSV Eindhoven on Thursday has been postponed due to "severe limitations on police resources", although Chelsea's Champions League tie at home to Red Bull Salzburg 24 hours earlier will go ahead as planned.

All EFL fixtures resume tonight with a minute's silence to be held before matches and the National Anthem played. Black armbands will be worn and flags flown at half-mast.

Southgate will delay meet-up

GARETH SOUTHGATE will allow his England stars to watch the Queen's funeral with their families instead of joining up at St George's Park.

The Three Lions were scheduled to report to St George's Park on Monday following the weekend's Premier League games.

England face Italy in Milan a week on Friday, before hosting Germany at Wembley three days later in what will be their final matches before heading to the World Cup in Qatar.

But Southgate (inset) has seen his plans thrown into confusion due to the fact the state funeral of the Queen takes place on the same day his stars were due at England's HQ.

It is understood Southgate has consulted with some of his senior players to discuss the situation.

And he is expected to allow his squad to remain at home before meeting up later that evening or the following morning.

Southgate will name his squad on Thursday but as a mark of respect to Her Majesty has cancelled his scheduled media conference.

NAPLES TWISTER

Cruel Klopp tortures stars with videos of 'worst performance'

JURGEN KLOPP forced his Liverpool players to sit through the 'horror show' performance against Napoli which he has called "the worst game we played since I was here".

The Kop boss delivered a video nasty to Mo Salah (left) and his team-mates in a bid to inspire his charges after what he admitted was the worst performance by his side since he arrived in 2015.

The Reds were thrashed 4-1 in last week's Champions League opener against the Serie A side in Naples.

After the weekend's matches were postponed, Klopp has had a week to go through his side's shocker ahead of tonight's clash with Ajax and he ripped into his side.

"Lots of thoughts," said Klopp (inset). "Meeting with the players, I watched the game back plenty of times and it was a real horror show to be honest."

"We showed the boys the situations as well. They knew, but seeing it again makes it really obvious. It was the worst game we played since I was here."

"We had a few bad games - everyone remembers Aston Villa and some others where we were just not up to speed but there were always glimpses in these games. In this particular game - nothing."

"Eight out of 11 were below their level and the three others were not on a top level, just a normal game. It was not needed to say a lot about it but I did any way. Did I question the players? Generally no. In this situation, yes.

■ by CHRIS McKENNA

"There are four or five days now of absolute truth. We didn't hide anything, we didn't hold back anything, there was no need for that."

"We just said it how it is, but not to knock the players down, just to make sure where we are now is the starting point and we make sure we sort the problems together on the pitch."

The Reds have conceded 10 goals in their opening seven games in what has been a poor start to the season in the Premier League as well, with just two wins from six.

And they face an Ajax side who have won all their league games this season to sit top of the Eredivisie.

They opened their Champions League campaign with a 4-0 defeat of Rangers and then on Saturday beat Heerenveen 5-0 in the league with Mohammed Kudus scoring twice, having also scored a few days earlier.

Klopp said: "We all have to realise it starts with defending. We have to celebrate to win a challenge again. If you do that, you can get some kind of momentum."

"There is no good game I can remember when a team played really good attacking and defensively was just a shambles."

"We are not over the moon about our season, we don't play exceptional football. It looked like everyone wanted to sort the problem by himself."

Liverpool did suffer an awful period during their title-defending season of 2020-21 when injuries wrecked their chances.

But this feels like the first real struggle for Klopp at Anfield after seven seasons of rise and success.

"I have to do something, I can't sit there and wait for how we react," said Klopp.

"Is this the situation I wanted? No. But now you are in it you find it interesting and challenging."

"A lot of good things happen in the past and this team showed an incredible kind of consistency over a long period and I know how this business works."

"I watched the game back plenty of times and I would have asked a lot of questions about the manager and the specific players. Now we have to respond."

Andy Robertson will be absent until after the international break due to a knee injury.

MATIP: HOME TRUTHS HURT

JOEL MATIP admitted the truth hurts after Liverpool boss Jurgen Klopp ripped into his under-performing stars.

He said: "I think in the team we are quite clear, sometimes it hurts and this is normal but in a good team, which I think we are, you can speak about these truths."

"You don't like to hear them in the first moment sometimes but everybody knows

■ by CHRIS McKENNA something has to happen and we have to improve and that we have to work on these kind of things."

Matip did admit it is more than one thing which has gone wrong with the Reds who have won just two league games out of six this season.

They face Ajax tonight looking to arrest their decline this term. The defender added: "It is not easy to give this one thing. Then it would be easier and everybody can turn it around."

"We need to expect that Ajax is a great side and that we have to suffer. It doesn't work out directly from the first second."

"We want to be there from the first second and want to fight. This is the only way to get back on track."

MOVE: Karius

Karius a keeper for Toon

by DARREN WITCOOP

NEWCASTLE have completed the signing of former Liverpool keeper Loris Karius on a short-term contact.

Karius, who has agreed a deal until January, will provide cover for Nick Pope after his understudy Karl Darlow was sidelined with an ankle injury.

The Magpies' other keeper, Martin Dubravka, is unable to be recalled from his deadline-day loan to Manchester United due to the terms of his contract.

Newcastle boss Eddie Howe said of Karius: "He is a very good goalkeeper with Premier League and European experience and he will provide competition and support over an important part of the season."

Karius, best known for his poor display in the 2018 Champions League final against Real Madrid, left Liverpool in the summer after becoming a free agent.

The German said: "It's a good opportunity for me and a great project to be a part of. It didn't take me long to make a decision."

Xavi not scared

BARCELONA boss Xavi has laughed off the suggestions that playing at Bayern Munich is like visiting the "house of horrors" ahead of tonight's Champions League clash.

The clubs met in last season's group stage, with the German side twice winning 3-0.

But Barca are now a very different side and are spearheaded by their prolific striker Robert Lewandowski, who moved to the Nou Camp from the Bavarians in the summer.

Barcelona have never won at the Bundesliga champions, who have triumphed in the last four meetings between the clubs including an 8-2 humiliation in the 2020 quarter-finals.

Xavi said his side should have no fear going to Munich in the Group C showdown.

He said: "I wouldn't call it the house of horrors - it's just Bayern's ground."

Liverpool host Ajax in the Champions League tonight and Reds boss Klopp said: "I think it [minute's silence] is the right thing to do but I don't think our people need any kind of advice."

"There are plenty of examples where people showed exactly the right respect. One which surprised me, and I was really proud of that moment, was when we played Manchester United around a very sad situation with Cristiano Ronaldo's family."

"And that is what I expect. For me, it is clear it's what we have to do."

Klopp also paid tribute to the late Queen, adding: "She is the only Queen of England I ever knew. I don't know her but you can see she was a really warm, nice, loved lady."

Alf expects to weather storm

by DARREN WITCOOP

ALFRED SCHREUDER expects his Ajax side to encounter a storm against Liverpool - but hopes he can take some tips from ex-boss Erik ten Hag to help his side cope.

The Reds were humiliated 4-1 by Napoli in their Group A opener last week and, with last weekend's Premier League matches called off after the Queen's death, Liverpool players have been waiting almost a week for competitive action.

Schreuder is braced for a response in front of their own fans. The Ajax boss (inset) said: "Yeah, we expect to go into a storm."

"We are also good. We try and play our own game."

"You have to have courage and, if we can do that, we have a chance."

"If you don't have it it is going to be difficult, especially one on one."

Schreuder's predecessor

Ten Hag has already recorded a 2-1 victory over Liverpool this season as the new Manchester United manager and the current Ajax coach studied that performance as part of their preparations.

He added: "I have looked at the match what they did."

"There are certain things they did that are applicable to us from the Manchester United match."
